LETTERS ARE BITTER

Friction Between Lansing and Wilson Is of Long Standing and Latter Wanted to Resign Long Ago — Congress May Investigate.

By United Press Leased Wire

Washington.—Official Washington today was apparently bewildered by the sudden resignation of Secretary of State Robert Lansing at the request of President Wilson, who charged his ranking cabinet officer with trying to assume presidential prerogatives.

Not since the now famous resignation of William J. Bryan, Lansing's predecessor on the eve of the sending of a submarine note to Germany, has a break in the president's official family caused so much discussion.

Talk of a congressional investigation at which the full story of the differences between Lansing and the president would be aired, possibility of the resignation affecting the league of nations battle in the senate and the possibility of resignation of other cabinet officers were some of the things discussed in private. Administrative officials and congressmen however, avoided any public utterance until they have had more time to go into the resignation and events leading up to it.

The resignation of Lansing was announced at the state department late yesterday following an exchange of letters which passed between Lansing and his chief.

In the course of these letters the president charges that Lansing by calling cabinet meetings during Wilson's illness was virtually trying to assume presidential authority.

"This affair, Mr. Secretary," the president continues, "only deepens a feeling that was growing upon me. While we were still in Paris I felt, and have felt increasingly ever since that you accepted my guidance and direction on all questions with regard to which I had to instruct you only with increasing reluctance and since my return to Washington I have been struck by the number of matters in which you have apparently tried to forestall my judgment by formulating action and merely asking my approval when it was impossible for me to form an independent judgment because I had not an opportunity to examine the circumstances with any degree of independence."

The first letter sent by the president to Lansing under date of February 7, asks the secretary if it was true that "during my illness you frequently called heads of the executive departments of the government into conference." This right, Wilson then said, rests with the president alone.

In reply to this letter Lansing said he had called cabinet meetings and continued:

"Shortly after you were taken ill in October certain members of the cabinet of which I was one, felt that in view of the fact that we were denied communication with you, it was wise for us to confer informally together on inter-departmental matters and matters as to which action could not be postponed until your medical advisers permitted you to pass upon them. I can assure you that it never for a moment entered my mind that I was acting unconstitutionally or contrary to your wishes and there certainly was no intention on my part to assume powers and exercise functions which under the constitution are exclusively confided to the president."

Lansing then offered to submit his resignation.

Wilson replied February 11 and charged Lansing with attempting to resume presidential powers and told him that he would "take advantage" of his offer to resign.

Lansing replied, submitting his resignation and said he had long been conscious of the fact that the president did not welcome his advice but felt it his duty to remain in the cabinet at present.

"Ever since January, 1919, Lansing said, 'I have been conscious of the fact that you were no longer disposed to welcome my advice in matters pertaining to the negotiations in Paris, to our foreign service or to the international affairs in general. Holding these views I would, if I had consulted my personal inclinations alone, have resigned as secretary of state and as a commissioner to negotiate peace."

"I thought however, that such a step might have been misinterpreted both at home and abroad and that it was my duty to cause you no embarrassment in carrying forward the great task in which you were then engaged."

Lansing declared his belief that the cabinet conferences were held for the best interests of the country and replying to the president's statement that he had tried to forestall Wilson's judgement at times he declared:

"I have, it is true, when I thought a case demanded immediate action, advised you what, in my opinion that action should be, stating at the same time the reasons on which my opinion was based. I confess that I have been surprised and disappointed at the frequent disapproval of my suggestions, but have never failed to follow your decisions however difficult it made the conduct of our foreign affairs."

Wilson's reply to this was short and formal, accepting Lansing's resignation.

The bitter interchange of letters passing between Wilson and Lansing recalled today numerous rumors that Lansing would resign. Some of these started before Lansing returned to this country from Paris but all were denied.

During the treaty fight, it was charged—and never denied—before the senate foreign relations committee that Lansing had expressed opposition to the treaty in private.

Later it was rumored that Wilson strongly disapproved Lansing's policy toward Mexico when Lansing gave evidence that he believed in a stiffer attitude regarding that country.

There were still other reports that Wilson was disappointed in Lansing's work in Europe and it was recalled today that Lansing was brought home and Under Secretary of State Polk sent to France.

It was pointed out that Wilson by condemning the holding of cabinet meetings during his illness could disavow responsibility for the injunction proceedings against the coal strike, a policy which has been widely condemned by labor.

The talk of a congressional investigation of circumstances surrounding Lansing's resignation rose from quarters where the peace treaty is opposed. It was evidently the belief that facts would be brought out which would mean death to the treaty.

What the effect of Lansing's resignation by request would have on other cabinet members who took part in the cabinet meetings during the president's illness was uncertain.

All of the cabinet members and J. P. Tumulty, secretary to the president took part in calling the meetings and it was at these gatherings that the policy of handling the coal strike by injunction was formulated.

It was generally believed, however, that the president's displeasure would extend to Lansing alone. The first indication that the president did not approve these meetings came several days ago when it was learned that Lansing, at the president's request, had called off further meetings.

Discussion as to Lansing's successor today centered on Frank Polk, under secretary of state, who will be acting secretary until a new appointment is made.

Polk is known to be well liked by the president, who, at times has given evidence that he placed more reliance on Polk than on Lansing.

William Graves Sharp, former ambassador to France, who came to Washington several days ago, was also mentioned. Friends of Attorney General Palmer also declared that Palmer would like a change in cabinet posts.

Lansing was appointed secretary of state succeeding Bryan. He was appointed June 24, 1915. Before Lansing was councillor of the state department.

Lansing was appointed because of his knowledge of international law, his appointment coming at the time of the submarine controversy between this country and Germany.

Lansing is a native of Watertown, N. Y. He is 55 years old.

Since the president became ill, there have been four resignations from his cabinet. They were Secretary of Commerce Redfield; Secretary of the Interior Lane; Secretary Glass and Secretary Lansing.

All the posts have been filled except the one vacated by Lansing. John B. Payne, chairman of the shipping board yesterday was nominated to succeed Lane. This leaves Payne's present job, an important one also vacant.

2,000 ARMENIANS ARE SLAIN BY THE TURKS

Two Americans Also Reported as Murdered by Turkish Nationalists—Fight With Allied Troops

By United Press Leased Wire
London.—More than two thousand Armenians were murdered in recent attacks by Turkish nationalists on the cities of Marash and Aintab, in Asiatic Turkey, according to a telegram today to the Armenian national delegation from Constantinople.

About the same time—Feb. 1—the telegram said, James Perry, general secretary of the international Y. M. C. A. in Turkey and his assistant, a man named Johnson, were murdered near Aintab. Both were Americans.

Turkish nationalists under Mustafa Kemal recently have been active in Asiatic Turkey and have clashed with allied and government troops. Marash is in the vilayet of Aleppo, 95 miles northwest of the city of Aleppo. Aintab, the seat of American missionary and educational work in Asiatic Turkey is on the southern slope of Mount Taurus, 60 miles northeast of Aleppo.

FAVORABLE REPORT ON MEAT REGULATING BILL

By United Press Leased Wire
Washington.—The senate agriculture committee today ordered a favorable report on the new Kenyon-Kendrick bill to regulate the meat packing industry.

The vote was unanimous in favor of reporting the measure. Chairman Gronna said, A federal live-stock commission would be set up by the measure to regulate the packers through a system of revocable registration.

The new measure was drafted following an agreement between the big packers and Attorney General Palmer by which the packers were to divorce their allied industries.

The license system in the original bill which was criticized by the packers is changed in the new bill so that regulation is achieved by "revocable registrations."

Trumbitch, the Jugo-Slav representative probably today. The note, it was understood, insists upon immediate settlement of the dispute.

The French complaints on delay of German coal deliveries to France, as provided in the treaty of Versailles, were referred to the reparations committee. The council also discussed the Hungarian situation.

THREE U. S. VESSELS ARE DISABLED AT SEA

By United Press Leased Wire
New York.—The United States shipping board steamer William Henry Webb was being towed to port today by the steamer Panama, according to a message received at the naval radio station here. The Webb was crippled and reported a fire off the New Jersey coast between Beach Haven and Tucker Beach light. The Webb carries a crew of 40.

The coast guard cutter Seneca which was already at sea in response to a distress call from the Avondale, another shipping board boat, started for the Webb on learning by wireless that that vessel's plight. When in sight of the Webb another wireless distress message was received from the New England coal company steamer Malden disabled off Fire Island. The Seneca was standing by the Malden at last reports.

INCREASE POWER CAPACITY OF THE W. T. L. H. & P. CO.

TWELVE AUTOMATIC STOCKERS COSTING $50,000 TO BE INSTALLED IN POWER HOUSE

MAY LOCATE IN APPLETON

Company Manufacturing Machines May Possibly Build Factory Here—Kaukauna Company Now Has Present Contract

Capacity of boilers now in use in the power house of the Wisconsin Traction, Light, Heat and Power Company will be very materially increased by the installation of 12 Moloch automatic, self-cleaning stockers within the next few months. The installation will represent an investment of approximately $50,000 and will do the work of nearly thirty men with a crew of six. Contracts for the installation were signed Friday.

The stockers will be installed under 750 horse power boilers. It is contended that the machines will increase the fuel efficiency by not less than 15 per cent and the capacity of the four boilers will be increased by three times. That means that boilers generating 750 horse power hand fired will produce 2250 with the stockers in use.

About 2 1/2 years ago 16 Moloch stockers were installed under four boilers generating approximately 3,000 horsepower and it was their efficiency which prompted the installation of the new units, it was said. The new machines have many improvements over those previously installed, and it is believed that the degree of efficiency will be greater than with the old installation.

Automatic stockers not only increase fuel efficiency but make possible the burning of a vastly greater amount of coal when it is needed. Approximately 140 tons of coal are now burned daily in the power house and it is believed that when the new stockers are in operation the burning capacity will be increased 200 tons a day, thereby making it possible to drive the engines at their maximum power and give service when it is most needed.

With the new system of firing it is impossible to speed up the boilers to the extent necessary when the power house is subjected to "peak load" conditions. Extensive extensions of the traction company's service and the ever increasing demand from local consumers of power has made it necessary to provide for emergency loads which hand firing could not possibly take care of.

It was said that it would require at least 24 men, working in three eight hour shifts, to generate as much power in the boiler as will be possible with the stockers. Traction company officials assert that it would be impossible for that many men to work in the boiler room at one time and in addition the labor market is such that it precludes obtaining a sufficient number of workers to man the fire-room efficiently. Only six men will be required to operate the stockers.

Installation of the machines will begin in about 90 days and it is expected the work will be completed 60 days later.

Moloch stockers at present are manufactured by the Kaukauna Machine Works of Kaukauna. This concern has a contract for the manufacture of these stockers aggregating over $1,000,000. While arrangements over the Kaukauna company are imminent satisfactory it is possible that at the expiration of the present contract the Moloch company will build a plant of its own. The location of this plant, of course, will be left to the stockholders, but it was intimated that if sufficient Appleton men are interested and the city shows an acceptable spirit, the plant may be erected in this city.

The company was organized about four years ago and is now capitalized at $600,000, $500,000 preferred and $100,000 common stock. The machine is the invention of C. J. Davidson, Milwaukee, and has been on the market about three years. Prior to closing the contract with the Kaukauna company the stockers were manufactured by a Chicago concern which found its own business increasing so rapidly that it could not take care of the stocker company contracts.

John B. Becht, president of the Wisconsin Traction, Light, Heat and Power company, is also president of the Moloch company. The vice-president is Alfred Letz of Chicago.

When the Kaukauna Machine Works was organized nearly three years ago an effort was made to locate the plant in this city but the proposition failed to secure the necessary support and it went to Kaukauna when business men of that city combined to make an attractive offer. It is entirely possible, however, that the company may yet move to this city if Appleton people evince sufficient interest. The company's business is growing very rapidly and it probably will be obliged to enlarge its quarters in the near future. When that becomes necessary, it was intimated that a change of location is not entirely out of the question.

Accept Wilson Suggestion In Wage Squabble

Union Men Agree to Peaceful Settlement of Controversy Along Lines Suggested by President—No Big Wage Increase

By United Press Leased Wire
Washington.—Railroad union leaders have agreed upon their reply to President Wilson in the wage controversy. President Dert M. Jewell, of the railway department of the American Federation of Labor, announced today.

Jewell said the formal reply will be delivered to the White House at 1 p. m. The decision of the union men is for peaceful settlement of the controversy along the lines suggested by President Wilson yesterday when he received a committee of three union leaders, it was said.

The president is understood to have told the union men that their demands for an immediate increase of 40 per cent would not be granted at this time. The president, however, outlined a course of action by which the leaders understood benefits ultimately would be accorded the 2,000,000 workers, whom they represent.

The reply of the railroad unions to President Wilson's proposal in the wage controversy was handed to Secretary Tumulty this afternoon.

RESERVATIONS TO ARTICLE TEN WILL BE DECIDED SOON

BREACH BETWEEN WILSON AND LANSING NOT EXPECTED TO HAVE BEARING ON THE FIGHT

(By L. C. Martin)
By United Press Leased Wire
Washington.—Whether the senate will be able to reach an agreement on a reservation to article X of the league of nations covenant will be decided within a day or two, senators today predicted.

It is not generally believed the resignation of Secretary Lansing, revealing a wide breach between him and the president, will affect the course of the treaty, although "irreconcilables" will try to make the most of it.

Hope of early agreement today centered about two proposals on article X reservation submitted to Senator Lodge by Senator Hitchcock yesterday. There two proposals, Hitchcock said, indicate the limits to which democrats are willing to go in compromise on this question.

Lodge today submitted to the republicans two proposals. He personally declined to commit himself publicly on either proposal. He said the first and most necessary thing to do was to see how many votes the democratic program could command.

Lodge's friends today pointed out that President Wilson in his letter to Senator Hitchcock, read in the recent democratic caucus, said the form of the reservation submitted to him some days earlier by Hitchcock was unfortunate.

This is the first of the two reservations the democrats have pledged themselves to vote for.

MORE STARTLING DISCLOSURES IN SCRAP EXPECTED

FULL STORY OF CLASH BETWEEN WILSON AND LANSING EXPECTED WITHIN A FEW DAYS

QUARREL STARTED IN PARIS

Ill Feeling Caused by Differences of Opinion—Mexican Affair Added to the Tension—Congress Has No Power to Act

By United Press Leased Wire
Washington.—Further disclosures were believed imminent today in the controversy between President Wilson and Robert Lansing, which resulted in the latter's resignation as secretary of state.

Although Wilson's announced reason for accepting Lansing's resignation was that the secretary had called and presided over cabinet meetings without authorization of the president, prolonged friction over conduct of foreign affairs led up to the final clash, according to the correspondence between Wilson and Lansing made public last night. The full story of this long continued conflict between the president and the secretary of state is expected to come to light during the next few days.

One of the first disclosures, it was learned today, probably will be making public of the letter of resignation of Henry P. Fletcher, former ambassador to Mexico. This letter is understood to be a criticism of Wilson's policy toward Mexico. Its contents have been withheld, nothing more than a hint as to its character being permitted to leak out since its submission sometime ago. Fletcher is understood to have favored the attitude toward Mexico which Lansing took during the negotiations over imprisonment of William O. Jenkins, consular agent. This attitude was changed later, supposedly at the instance of the president and the exchange of notes with Mexico ceased.

A number of congressmen today were seeking means for bringing the Wilson-Lansing clash before the house or senate for discussion.

No leader in either branch of congress, however, appeared anxious to take the initiative in such a move. It was considered likely discussion might break out if the president sends to the senate his nomination of a successor to Lansing, whose interest is still keen as it appeared today.

Frank L. Polk, under-secretary of state, today took up the work of acting secretary. He was considered a likely candidate for Lansing's office but it was believed probable Wilson would not send the nomination to the senate for several weeks, unless he becomes open discussion of the whole situation on the floor of congress.

It was learned today from an authoritative source that the ill-feeling between Wilson and Lansing began while they were in Paris.

The hostility neared the breaking point. It was authoritatively learned, while the president was in Paris, that the country speaking in behalf of the treaty ratification last September. While the president was on that journey, William C. Bullitt, a member of the American peace commission testifying before the senate foreign relations committee concerning the peace negotiations and his mission to Russia, made the following statement:

"That just before he left Paris for the United States, Lansing in conversation with him, said in effect that neither the senate nor the American people would approve the treaty if they knew what it 'let them in for.'"

After this Bullitt testified when Wilson returned to Washington, D. C. he did not see Lansing and although he saw other cabinet members during his convalescence, Lansing was never received, it was learned. This condition prevailed even during the Mexican crisis which arose over imprisonment of Jenkins.

It was stated that, being unable to consult the president, Lansing went ahead and formulated his own Mexican policy.

Then followed the diplomatic correspondence between Lansing and the Mexican foreign office which steadily became more sarcastic, in belief of many observers until Wilson stepped into the situation. Even then, it was learned, he did not receive the secretary of state. This episode hastened the final clash between Wilson and Lansing, it was stated.

The statement that there will be no more cabinet resignations because of the unauthorized meetings was taken in some quarters as an indication that Lansing's calling of such meetings was not the sole reason for his clash with the president. It is known that Tumulty himself has taken part in some of these meetings and that other cabinet officers had suggested sessions when they had anything to talk over with their fellow members.

Congress is without power to investigate the dismissal of Lansing. But it can investigate, if it wishes, the condition of America's foreign policy, in the opinion of Senator Knox, Pennsylvania, himself a former secretary of state.

RUNAWAY HORSE FORCES MAIL CARRIER IN DITCH

John Freude Meets With Accident When His Horse Is Frightened by Another Horse Running Away

Rather than take chances with a horse plunging wildly down the Hortonville road toward him, John Freude, rural mail carrier, drove his sleigh onto a high snow bank, but came to grief anyway. The horse had broken loose from a cutter some-where along the highway, and he had started running away with the shafts still attached, and his escapee was all the worse because the rigging was constantly striking his heels. When the horse passed a house, the driver's sleigh, his own horse became frightened. He made a lunge which sent sleigh, mail, driver and all into the ditch. The deep snow prevented a runaway, however, and service on route two was restored after a little patient labor straightening out the tangle. Freude sustained a bruise in the side, but it is not serious enough for him to be away from duty. Nothing is known of what became of the runaway, nor to whom the horse belonged.

Manitowoc—An upset occurred in the team standings Friday night when the Yama Yama No. 1, one of Sheboygan came in and rolled a total of 2,798, knocking the Nut League No. 1 squad of Milwaukee out of upper berth. Their totals for three games were 890, 938 and 970. Jimmy Smith failed.

The world's recognized greatest bowler visited this city with the F. G. Smith's team of Milwaukee Thursday night and won 533, far below the performance expected of him.

Jimmy had something to shoot for in every event but could not displace any of the present leaders. His all events total of 1732 put him out of the money entirely. The 1946 count established by Wallie Larson of Racine still holds good and those who were disappointed with his showing, paired with his boss, Fred Smith in the two men event games counted 616 at his end while his partner butted off 544. This gave them a total of 1160.

The completion of the doubles brought Smith into the singles and his complete collapse came here. It must be admitted that Jim lost several "pocket" hits but that his total to the best of them, Smith's total in the singles was 533. Not one of his games was over the 300 notch, his highest being 193. This score was sandwiched between counts of 182 and 158.

George Becker of the Smith Arcades team of the Cream City was high in the singles on Friday with 618 following games of 245, 132 and 131. John Kuth of the same quintet captured second honors with 615. They are far down in the standings however.

The best tally in the doubles was 1,176, registered by Gus Jonas and Fred Grossman, a pair of Milwaukee knights. They hold down sixth place in the standings. W. Niederkorn and S. Batke of Port Washington were second high with 1,155.

The Mitchell Motors of Racine ran into fourth place in the team event in the last shift with 2,752, and the Sharkey Buffets of Milwaukee placed seventh with 2,724.

WAS GRISTMILL—BUT NOW IS A SAWMILL

You would think Twelve Corners was a lumbering town these days. Fred Vick is devoting his feed mill machinery to sawing lumber two or three days a week, and farmers are coming in from all parts of the country with loads of logs to be converted into lumber for their own use. The high cost of building makes this a popular method of securing material these days.

RED CROSS SEEKS NURSE TO AID IN FLU EPIDEMIC

Efforts to Find Trained Nurse Have Been Unavailing, Thus Far—Will Take Nurse With Practical Experience.

Efforts of Outagamie Chapter of Red Cross to secure the services of a trained nurse to aid in the influenza epidemic have been unavailing. Nurses are in demand in all sections of the country and cannot be obtained for public service. It is planned to engage a county visiting nurse as soon as possible, however.

In the meantime the Red Cross is seeking for a woman with practical nursing experience who can assist during the epidemic. If there are any such women in Appleton or Outagamie county who wish to engage in this work they are requested to communicate with the Red Cross.

Reports coming in from the country districts indicate that the appointment of Miss Bertha Schultz as county school nurse meets with popular approval.

You'll need them! And you'll need to hold your sides, too, to keep from splitting over the antics of "orphan" Anne. Really, she ought to have been a boy! But then, she has a "serious side," also, and well did the villagers know it. Especially the Pie family! And she has a way of snuggling right into your heart. Look at old Cuthbert above. She certainly won him over, and he didn't want her at all in the beginning—he wanted a boy!

CASH GRAIN FALLS; FUTURES GO HIGHER

GRAIN PRICES ACTED IN ILLOGICAL MANNER ON THE CHICAGO BOARD OF TRADE

By United Press Licensed Wire
Chicago—Grain futures behaved in an illogical manner on the board of trade today. Despite the lowering of cash grain quotations, futures crawled up and finished higher than the opening. The Lansing resignation, expected to have a lowering effect on the stock market, which would be reflected in commodities, failed to exert that influence. Traders were cautious. The common explanation was that bears, having sold heavily in the past two weeks, and led into further sales by inaccurate reports of heavy Argentine exports, were inclined to ease up today.

A report to local grain houses that country shippers who had been complaining about inability to get cars for grain shipments had within the last few days refused available cars because of the apparent downward trend in prices.

Feb. corn opened off 1 1/2 at $1.29, and later gained 1 1/2; March opened late up 1/2 at $1.39, and later jumped 1/2; May opened off 1/2 at $1.32, later recovering 1/2; July opened off 1/2 at $1.29, and later recovered 1/2; August opened up 1/2 at $1.29, later jumping 1/2; July opened at 1/2 at $1.29, taking a 1/2 rise.

Provisions were generally higher.

THE WHOLE WORLD IS KIN.

It is refreshing to see all classes and creeds working together in full sympathy as they are now doing for the Armenian orphans. In many surface matters we differ and sometimes quarrel, but when it comes down to helping the children of a starving nation we forget our differences and become as one with a new sense of our common brotherhood.

It rouses one's enthusiasm to get reports as we are now doing from both city and county that both Catholics and Protestants, both labor unions and manufacturers and both city dwellers and farmers are vying with one another in their gifts.

There is no argument about the problem of feeding these hungry, shivering "kiddies"; it is only a question of how much we can give and what is our share. Our own warm supper will taste better and our own children will look happier in our eyes, if we have shared our bread with those hollow-eyed children who are looking to us so longingly from across the sea.

Pessimists sometimes say that the dream of brotherhood is only a dream and that the sons of other nations are our natural enemies, but this tie of sympathy with the other side of the world is proof positive that human brotherhood is already a reality—not the full reality, but that's coming yet "for a that."

The great war brought us many terrible things, but it also bound the peoples together as never before in their desperate endeavor to save their liberties. Men of different blood in America have been fused together in one spirit of patriotism for which we are profoundly thankful. We have become accustomed to feel and act together. And it seems a perfectly natural thing now for America to be giving thirty millions of dollars for the four hundred thousand hungry orphans in the near East—of another nation, but still our allies and brothers.

The League of Nations will be a body of laws and covenants, but the soul which alone will make that body live and endure is just this spirit of co-operation and friendship and good will which America is showing to the Armenians.

Whoever will adopt an orphan either for a year or for the period his means allows will weave another strand to bind the nations together and establish the peace of the world.

GET TOGETHER ON THE TREATY.

It looks as though the political farce which has been going on for months at Washington over the peace treaty is near the end of its course. The irreconcilables, who have been out to beat the treaty at any cost, predict that ratification is near. Further information is to the effect that Senator Lodge is opposed to throwing the issue into the presidential campaign, unless, of course, it could be done with the onus clearly upon the Democratic party. The Democrats on their part are in the same position, they are fencing for advantage before the country in case the deadlock is not broken. Mr. Lodge is reported to have said that this treaty must not go into the election, and to have informed the extremists of his party that a compromise is desirable in case it can be brought about.

The net conclusion to be drawn from the situation is that neither party wants to go to the people on non-ratification, unless it is confident that the other party is on the defensive and in the wrong. Leaders of both parties have been seeking political capital out of the terms of peace and the league of nations. They all are aware that the controlling factor with the public will lie in responsibility for inaction. They realize that the people almost unanimously are demanding ratification, and that responsibility for failure to ratify will be a heavy burden to assume. It is a question with the politicians in the senate as to how the treaty can be disposed of with the maximum party credit and the minimum party discredit. It is a game of politics pure and simple, and one of the most humiliating the country has ever suffered.

At the present time the major responsibility for the deadlock rests upon the Lodge element. It was Mr. Lodge who broke off the bi-partisan conference at the moment when it appeared they were likely to succeed. The chairman of the foreign relations committee took this ill-advised step on an ultimatum from the irreconcilables—from the men whose only purpose is to defeat the league of nations. It is incumbent upon Mr. Lodge to modify his position to such an extent as will re-open the avenue to a compromise, and this, it seems, he is prepared to do. We do not think there is the slightest doubt that Mr. Lodge would place himself and the Republican party in an unenviable light by forcing the treaty and league into the campaign because of an arbitrary refusal to accept ratification only on his reservations. The temper of the country unmistakably is for a less rigid attitude and for ratification on the basis of more liberal reservations.

We do not think the Republican party could create for itself any heavier handicap in the presidential election than to go to the people with the Lodge reservations as the irreducible minimum for American participation in the league of nations. If Mr. Lodge is ready to recede and to accept a program which constitutes a genuine compromise and which preserves the essential features of the league, after defining the constitutional and moral limitations which rest upon America's acceptance of its obligations under the covenant, he will have performed the greatest possible service for the Republican party and for the nation as well. It is an opportunity which should not lightly be thrown away. The display of such an attitude by the Republicans would place the full responsibility for failure to ratify on the Democrats, and we do not believe they would accept it with any more taste than the Republicans can view the existing situation. Refusal to compromise will be a big political blunder by one party or the other.

Today's Poem

My dear young man: I want to state I know your measurements and gait And you're no mental heavyweight, Nor are you apt to jar the state, But what of that? I don't desire A man to set the seas on fire, He, whom the very gods admire Is apt to blow up like a tire.

I want a man who earns enough To keep the kids in shoes and stuff, So we can make a decent bluff At being somewhat up to snuff, But I don't need a man so bent On profiteering and per cent That all his days and nights are spent Upon that one accomplishment.

I want a man whose form and face Proclaim him of the human race, But not of such transcendent grace He aims to take Apollo's place, For it is my judicial view Most men are steadfast, strong and true As they're unattractive, young, In this respect, I think will do.

So if you'd like a wedding-trip By motor, trolley, train or ship, With me along, well, here's my tip: Don't let your present chances slip. If you agree to this, just sign The contract on the dotted line, And take me while the taking's fine. Your loving, leap-year, VALENTINE

AWAY WITH WEAKNESS

That tuberculosis is primarily a "nutritional disease" is the opinion expressed by a number of speakers at various meetings of medical and health authorities now assembled at Atlantic City. It is pointed out that the vast majority of adults, if not all, have the infection or the scars of healed tuberculosis.

Why some of these should be struck down by the germ and its poison while others escape without ever knowing they were threatened, has been the occasion of a great deal of study and theorizing. Whence comes the "resistance" of some individuals and the lack of it on the part of others has been more or less a puzzle to the experts.

One fact has stood out in all of the observations, viz., that tuberculosis is a disease which affects the poverty stricken far more than it does those who are prosperously situated. These are people who have less good food, less sunshine, less fresh air, (especially in the long winters), and less opportunity for rest and wholesome recreation. As a rule, too, they are less well educated and intelligent and hence fail to make the best possible use of such opportunities as they do have.

This latter consideration may suggest the explanation of the fact that the disease frequently does overwhelm those who have abundant means and opportunities for securing good health for themselves. For it is a well established fact that physicians find partially starved children in homes, the garbage pails, and the streets, and that these children are often found to be suffering from tuberculosis.

Some experts hold that if we are ever to do away with tuberculosis as the cause of one in every ten deaths it will only be in a generation in which babies have been born right, fed right, and then built up to a strong resistant manhood and womanhood by careful intelligent care throughout childhood. Hence the interest in "nutrition classes" which is today rapidly spreading over America as a part of the determination that never again shall a census of our young men (or women) make such disclosures of physical unfitness as were made by the medical examinations for selective military service.

It is the custom in Japan for parents to label their children with their address, so that in case they wander any wayfarer may send them home.

Weeping Never Makes Bob Tender, As I Expected It To Do

Thus Daddy acquiesced with his son's arrangements. "We'll wait aboard her until you bring Chrys if it takes all night."

"No sir! I beg of you not to wait more than three days," broke in Jordan Spence. "If we are not with you by that time, Mr. Lorimer, you must conclude that Bob and I have failed."

"That's so," agreed Bob. "Spence and I can manage to get across the border safely, somehow. Don't worry about us, Dad."

My husband's voice was confident but his words chilled me. I hadn't, up to that minute, had any idea that he would not arrive safely at the seaboard with Chrys in a reasonable length of time. I pulled Bob close to the side of the car, snuggled my head on his shoulder and began to cry!

"Jane, my dear! Don't work yourself into a spasm of hysteria like this, before all these people!" he warned me.

A woman's tears always irritate Bob and he always shows his annoyance. Doubtless lots of husbands hate tears in the same way but they do not show it. Weeping never makes Bob tender as I expect it to do. "Come to me," he said, and sat up as stiffly as Daddy Lorimer was doing.

"Look after Hamilton Certisei. He is wounded, you know." I spoke in my most controlled tone. "Don't forget the little stunt I outlined. And remember, Bob, that only you and I and Don Manuel know what has become of Certisei."

"What has?" asked Daddy. "I am forsaking his roof in a most informal manner, but only for the reason that he is not to be found."

Bob's angular jaw set hard in a way I knew well. He replied briefly: "Never mind now where Certisei is. Jane will tell you as you ride along."

Then he shook hands with the men, deposited a formal kiss upon my brow—the only kind he ever can achieve in public—slammed the door of the auto and gave an order to the driver.

Our flight from the hacienda must have been spectacular. The gang of detectives, ex-cowboys and border adventurers, which Morrison had disguised as Mexican bandits, had made their unexpected and dramatic attack upon the hacienda by the use of armored cars. For once in my life I found myself traveling with an escort! Our car was preceded and followed by a guard!

Gene Archer sat by Daddy Lorimer in the comfortable rear seat. Morrison and I faced him. Never was weak and white and very wretched. Nevertheless, he was inclined to see, the comedy of the situation as well as its tragedy.

Off we tore and I did not look back. Had I done so, I would have disgraced myself by weeping. My nerves were jumpy in consequence of the week's adventures and my tired brain refused to accept Bob's logic. Our flight from the hacienda seemed cowardly to me. I thought that we were deserting Bob and Chrys and Spence. Of course I couldn't blame Daddy and Morrison. Neither of them knew about the dangers of the secret chambers and dungeons—like tombs—and even if they did know, they were both so stubborn!

Our car swerved violently. Daddy reprimanded the chauffeur, who became embarrassed. He stopped the car and experimented with his controls.

Gene Archer gave us the first hint of our real danger.

"Another shake," he said. "That wasn't a careless skid, Mr. Lorimer. We didn't hit a bump. I think the quake is coming on again."

"In that case, I suppose we are just as well off here as anywhere else?" Daddy queried.

"Better, perhaps," Archer answered. "The earth may swallow us up, Mr. Lorimer, but there are no roofs and no walls to topple down on us. Bob is under a roof! And Chrys! Go back! Please!" I begged.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM

A SORROWFUL SPECTACLE

Armenia in the Near East presents one of the most sorrowful spectacles that the world has known for many years. In this case an enormous Armenia is the poorest. No nation has suffered, in consequence of the European war by circumstances over which they had no control whatsoever, more than Armenia. In that case an entire people has undergone most cruel and heart-rending martyrdom. The sad plight of its starving children should especially excite the citizens of Appleton and Outagamie County in their sympathy and help. Could we but realize amidst the comforts which we enjoy, what must be the miserable fate of these small nations of "The Near East" especially the babies and children, the work of "The Near East Relief" in Outagamie County would meet every support. I certainly commend it and wish it success. In view of the fact that the campaign in Outagamie County has been somewhat hampered by the epidemic of influenza, it is necessary that folks send in their donation to their different district chairmen without waiting to be called on by word of mouth. This is a nation wide campaign. I understand that in Wisconsin alone there have been 15 counties prohibited from holding public meetings during the past two or three weeks, and as a result it has been impossible in these counties to properly present the pitiful condition of Armenia. It therefore behooves those of us who are in position to do so, to come across in even a bigger way than we would under other circumstances.

Some counties in the state have already gone over their quota. Let Outagamie be found leading the rest as usual.

COLLEGE GIRLS VS. SHOW GIRLS

New York.—When President S. M. Carey Thomas of Bryn Mawr College said in a recent address that college girls made better wives than show girls, she started something.

"Pooh, pooh," says Memphis Russell of the chorus of Arthur Hammerstein's "Always You." "So the lady thinks college girls make better wives than show girls. I'd like to line up 20 girls, 10 of them college girls, and 10 of them show girls, and then bring on 10 Johnnies."

"It would be pretty safe for me if I had my end of the bet down on the chorus girls, for it would only be a short time until the men were all on one side of the room and they wouldn't be on the side with the college girls either."

"Can a college girl cook? Can a college girl sew? Can a college girl economize? Not many of them. They're so busy learning about Plato and atoms and equal suffrage that they forget to learn other things."

"Chorus girls are picked for the things that men look for, good looks, grace, and personality. And that's why men pick 'em out. And the show girl knows men, knows what they like, and furthermore, when she finds a good one she hangs on to him."

"And so," says Memphis Russell, "you can say for me that what Patsy Thomas told those girls at Bryn Mawr may be interesting, especially to them, but I don't believe it's true."

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Saturday, Feb. 16, 1895.

Rev. H. P. Haylett was in Milwaukee.

Senator Kennedy had been ill at Madison and was expected home to recuperate.

Walter Goodland of the Ironwood Times was visiting his father, Judge Goodland.

Mrs. Jones returned to Marinette at the close of a visit with her daughter, Mrs. D. E. Reese.

Abbott Kunderling, while sliding down the drowsy hill, ran into a log and was knocked senseless.

Miss Lucy Shilling entertained friends Thursday evening at the home of her sister, Mrs. W. Konrad, at a wishbone party, the prizes being won by Miss Johnson of Kaukauna and Frank Schreier of Appleton.

George Stroebe, aged 29, died the day previous of consumption.

An effort was being made to remove Dana's band and orchestra from Wausau to Appleton.

C. H. Bixby retired from the firm of Spaulding & Co., which was being continued by Messrs Spaulding, Colvin and Shaylor.

G. C. Jones was confined to the house with a broken toe, due to a stick of wood falling on it.

At the annual picnic meeting Feb. 22, among other things Mrs. George E. Downer, whose girlhood was spent in Seymour, was to have a paper on pioneer life, and Henry Culbertson of Greenville was to present a paper on the same subject. President John Dey also was priming himself with a new fund of pioneer stories and reflections.

The formation of a base ball league was being agitated to include Appleton, Fond du Lac, Oshkosh, Green Bay and Marinette.

Mrs. George E. Hoskinson of Grand Rapids was visiting Mrs. Ramsay.

THE PASSER BY

True wit is nature to advantage dressed.
 What oft was told, but never so well expressed.

According to recent foreign dispatches an ex-officer of the German general staff officers that there was to be a great Teutonic drive on March 1, but he evidently had had a lapse of memory and was thinking of two years ago when Hindy said he would be in Paris by April 1. The dispatches are redundant, however, and the fact is at once apparent. Call it an ex-officer of the German army, an officer or an insane-insane officer, German militarism was founded on madness and its greatest exponents from Wilhelm, Hindy and von Tubbiz on down—or up, as you choose—were as cracked as the proverbial and much maligned loon.

It may be true that the planets are inhabited as the scientists tell us, but it is rather hard to imagine any real he-men living on a planet with such a sweet name as Venus.

Clouds

Over the hill-top, down into the valley.
 Damp little clouds scurry hard on their way.
 Over the hill-top, over the tree top.
 Darkening, a second, the bright of the day.
 Over life's hill-top, where laughter is bubbling.
 Chill little clouds scurry hard on their way.
 Over life's hill-top (and tears do not halt them).
 Darkening, a second, the bright of the day.

Slavery

There were men who believed that all men should be freed From tyrannical yokes but, alack, There's a class of old ginks Who can't see it that way. They've "Voted" our drinks Even on Thanksgiving day. Abolish all smoking they, too, have decreed— Seems to me we have slavery back. Du Tell.

Food for Weak (Minded) Females

Today, dear children, let us study the latest bulletin from the Gouger Sisters' plant, where very bad whisky is converted by the magic dash of "herbs and roots, purely vegetable," into a kind of infallible "tonic," "strengtheners" and panacea for the "delicately organized sick."

"There's a time in every young woman's life when she should ask her mother," the Gouger Sisters assure the world, "her sister or her aunt, or perhaps an old friend—"

The old friend is with us today. Meet Mrs. Camp.

"—or perhaps an old friend, what she should do for that pain—dizziness or headache? feeling which distresses most women in maidenhood, womanhood, motherhood."

Every blessed hood except grandmotherhood. What have the Gouger Sisters against grandmotherhood, I wonder? Maybe they have the decency to feel that, in rare cases, women begin to acquire a grain of sense by the time old age is upon them. "Who does not know," continues this "veritable pair of sisters," to the accompaniment of tremulous soft music and bold hard type, "who does not know women and young girls"—beautiful cloak models, attention, please—"young girls who are continually in tears—who always see the dark side—who have frequent fits of melancholia without any apparent cause?"

Great Peter! There has been some horrible mistake in creation. Who does not know males who answer that very description—coarsely organized brutes who take their booze out of a frank booze bottle—when they can get it?

"The intelligent physician"—this is getting more interesting! What can the Gouger Sisters have to say of the intelligent sex? "The intelligent physician will know that it is some derangement of the complicated organs delicate feminine organs."

For a long time I have been worried about my mental condition. Why, I am in a bad way—I can no more know, by intuition, as an intelligent physician obviously should, that a patient has some derangement of complicated or delicate organs, from such vague indiscriminate symptoms, I can swim across Lake Michigan. I must write to the Gouger Sisters' head stenographer and ask her to tell me some more of the symptoms. She might mail me Set 13, I am young yet. Wait-till my whiskers get down to my hips—and the stars are in just the right place in the sky. But on with the vaudeville:

"At such times one should procure at the nearest drug store" (saloons being generally out of business and having been too respectable when they were in business) "the Gouger Sisters' Female Nourish. Listen to what Mrs. Minnie McSwish of Punkinhooket, West Virginia, or Godforsaken, Delaware, says: My mother (when not in jail) always kept Gouger Sisters stuff in the house. I worked pretty well in a pinch. Often and often, when the old man was out of a job mother'd serve a couple fingers of Gouger all round and the neighbors pronounced it the finest medicine. I hope this will come to the attention of other girls and women who suffer for a nip. You are welcome to use my name—it is worthless to me."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Care, European Style

Please send me in detail Dr. S. Wier Mitchell's rest cure for neurasthenia. (S. C. H.)

ANSWER.—It is described in detail in textbooks on neurology and every physician and nurse specialist is familiar with it. The Wier Mitchell rest cure calls for medical supervision and expert nursing, usually in a hospital or sanatorium. The word cure is here employed in the European sense, as a mode or system of treatment, not in the American sense, as a restoration from disease. When the European medical man announces a cure for a disease he means a method of treatment, which may or may not prove restorative. The Wier Mitchell rest cure, carefully administered, is still of great value in the treatment of neurasthenia.

Dry Chapped Skin

Have noticed in your column a formula for dry chapped hands. Will you please print the formula again. (Mrs. M. F. K.)

ANSWER.—Boric acid 1 dram
 Glycerin 2 ounces
 Tricaine 1 dram
 Water 1 pint
 Boil all together, constantly stirring, until delivered. Apply two or three times a day after washing and before skin is quite dry, and allow to dry. This tends to whiten the skin if it is red. The lotion is sometimes agreeable to the soreness after shaving.

Symptoms

What are the first symptoms of hardening of the arteries? Do you ache all the time and are your muscles and joints sore. (AT. C. C.)

ANSWER.—Send S. A. E. for monograph on cardio-vascular disease. There are no characteristic symptoms, and there were I certainly would not suggest them to you. Symptom hounds sometimes bite off more than they can chew—suffer agonies from diseases they haven't got.

BO-LA-BO-MEANS JOY

It appears that on the memorable occasion of Cleopatra's trip down the dreamy Nile, accompanied by Anthony, the latter sought to beguile the weary hours in the indulgence of those sweet and tender harmonies that always do so much to fan the fires of love in a lady's possibly otherwise cold and unresponsive bosom. In short, Anthony not only accompanied Cleopatra on the boat but also on the lyrophone—a now obsolete Egyptian instrument, whose place has been to some extent taken by the modern Hebrew harp. So enraptured was the beautiful Oriental with the dulcet chords evoked by the handsome but reckless Anthony, that her desire for more than the mere melody became irresistible. She inquired of Anthony if he could not sing a lyric to the melody he was playing. "I cannot evolve lyrics," answered Anthony regretfully. "and if I could, I am no vocalist." But Cleopatra was importunate. "Make something up," she insisted, using the idiom of the period, which somehow has a strangely familiar ring to modern ears. "Very well," said Anthony. "I will do my best." Whereupon he resorted to the simple expedient of many of his successors when at a loss for singable, intelligible lyrics. Now-a-days when humming a tune without words, we sing "Tum-Ti-Ta" or "La-La-La" or words to the same effect. But these unmusical and somewhat coarse substitutes for genuine poetry were happily unknown to Anthony, and would have fitted in ill with his amorous mood. Thus it was that he spontaneously invented a set of words of his own, which despite their monotony, possess in some appreciable degree the soul of poetry. Idly humming the while he strummed upon his lyrophone the melody that had so enchanted his beloved Cleopatra. "Bo-La-Bo, Bo-La-Bo, over and over again, with tender repetition until the last measure of the melody died away in a moonlit wall. It is assumed with some regard to logic, it must be confessed, that the reason Anthony's words have never wholly passed into oblivion is that they were so easy to memorize. However that may be, they are here immortalized in the title of the new Egyptian Fox Trot that is driving everybody to the land of Ecstasy—the wonderful, swinging, rhythmic, infectious and gloriously notorious "Bo-La-Bo."

HIGH SCHOOL TEAM LOSES FAST GAME TO MENASHA QUINT

SEASON'S PERFECT RECORD IS SPOILED BY 12 TO 6 DEFEAT
AT MENASHA LAST NIGHT

Appleton high school's perfect record went up in smoke Friday night when Coach Vincent's quint was defeated by the Menasha high basketball five at Neenah armory by a 12 to 6 score, after starting the season with five consecutive wins.

The locals made a game fight to maintain their unblemished record, but luck and the big floor was against them. Appleton had tough luck with the basket, which helped greatly to keep the locals on the short end of the count.

The game was one of the fastest and cleanest high school contests ever played at Neenah. Both teams used a tight offense, and the field goals were nearly all of the long distance variety. Menasha showed up better than in the previous game here, and Blue and White passed the ball with accuracy, and the guards spoiled the Appleton offense regularly after it reached the middle of the floor.

Coach Vincent's five got the jump when Briese tossed in a neat field goal from a difficult angle. Dunn repeated the performance from the other corner, ending the Appleton score for the half. Pruchnoffski and Schubert tied the count shortly before the end of the half with field goals from the center of the floor. The period ended 4 to 4.

Appleton was considerably handicapped by the fact that no out of bounds was called after the first few minutes of play. Frequent tie balls when the pellet rolled off to the side lines slowed up the contest, and put the locals up in the air. Schubert's field goal near the close of the half was made as a result of a pass from out of bounds.

Although chances were many Appleton failed to score a field basket in the closing half. Briese tossed two free throws out of five attempts, while two baskets by Walker to open the half was enough to put the game on ice for the home team. Schubert and Gazecki each contributed a field goal during the half.

Briese displayed some fast work in the closing period, but failed to count despite frequent chances. Jacobson played his usual fighting game, while Dunn's center did his best work of the season. Showalter at guard was the star of the contest. The little defensive man hung tight throughout the game, and held his man to a single basket.

Frankland, Oshkosh, refereed the tilt.

The line up, Appleton—Jacobson, J. J. Johnson, R. C. Briese, L. F. Dunn, C. Showalter, F. G. Kubitz, L. G. Menasha—Hahn, Pruchnoffski, forwards; Schubert, center; Walker, Gazecki, guards.

FREE THROWS

It was a nice score—for a football game.

The horse-shoe was missing. Another reason for the Appleton defeat. Three hundred Appleton rooters sat and stood on the side line cursing inwardly and praying outwardly for victory. They made a lot of noise.

Menasha celebrated after the game. The battle-scarred funeral stunt was pulled, the students marching beside a decorated box meant to look like a casket. The two Menasha musicians played a funeral dirge as the procession wended its way while the five Appleton men in the orchestra were discreetly silent.

Five victories and one defeat is the Appleton record to date. Can't win them all.

Johnson went in at forward for Jacobson near the close of the battle. He failed to get a try at the basket.

ROAD BUILDERS ARE CHARY OF CONTRACTS

OUTAGAMIE COUNTY CONTRACTORS ARE NOT BIDDING FOR WORK BECAUSE OF UNCERTAINTIES

Road contractors are somewhat timid about bidding on highway work at present on account of the unsettled condition of the railroad situation, the labor situation and the increased cost of material. It is possible that some of them will make no effort to secure contracts until they are satisfied that they can fill them.

Bids have already been called for by at least two counties that are intending to do paving the coming season, but so far as is known local contractors are submitting no figures. The material for the work they did in Outagamie county last year was ordered in large quantities by the county early in the season, but in figuring on work in other counties they are required to get their own material.

Cement has increased in price and the possibility of not being able to get it when needed on account of railroad tie-ups makes it a hazardous undertaking to attempt to do any contract work. The labor uncertainty, too, is an important item for which allowance has to be made. It is predicted that bids on road work will of necessity be so high this spring that they will be quite generally rejected.

Spring Fever

Haven't these last few warm days made your thoughts turn toward Spring? I bet that you have been out in the garage and looked the old buss over and maybe turned her over once or twice to see if everything was O. K. Now it is up to you to keep Old Faithful going and full of pep for another season. Don't wait until the roads dry up to start your overhauling but begin right now and put in every spare moment you have and you will be out with the early birds in the Spring.

Do the job right. Clean out the carbon, grind the valves, a new set of piston rings will do wonders, throw away those worn out and broken spark plugs and put in new ones, see that all the wires are in good shape, and when you get all thru put in a good quality of fresh oil and grease. It may need a coat of paint or varnish and your top will look better and wear longer if you apply some of our top dressing. If the lining is faded and worn a coat of our lining dye will make it look like new.

No matter what you may need you will find it in our large and well selected stock of

THE urgent and pathetic ap-the Armenian country will be placed before the people of Appleton and Outagamie County beginning Monday in a campaign to secure the adoption of 250 of these helpless orphans.

They are pleading for bread in sufficient quantity to keep body and soul together during the present crisis through which they are passing. Only just enough to help them in their struggle to rise from the depth of starvation and unspeakable suffering into which war and persecution has forced them.

This appeal has touched the heart of America. Appleton and Outagamie County surely wants to be counted on to do its part in the nationwide movement which has been launched to raise funds for this humanitarian and charitable purpose.

"Adopt an orphan for a year." $60.00

LOOK FOR STRUGGLE OVER IMMIGRATION LAWS IN CONGRESS

LABOR FORCES ARE MOBILIZING FOR EFFORT TO TEMPORARILY STOP IMMIGRATION.

Washington, D. C.—Congress shortly will be the scene of a struggle between capital and labor over the question of the suspension of immigration for a prescribed period, possibly two years.

Although the net influx of foreigners since the armistice has been negligible, while more aliens are leaving than entering the United States, the American Federation of Labor, intent upon repressing the competition of immigrant labor, is preparing to swing all its influence to put through a bill shutting off all immigration temporarily.

With labor scarce and wages the highest in the history of the country, employers are demanding more and more labor and preparing to fight the suspension bill, which they contend would restrict the expansion of industry and retard the natural processes relied upon to reduce the cost of living.

Chairman Johnson intends to convene the house committee on immigration within the next fortnight to consider legislation regulating immigration which he purposes to press to passage before the adjournment of this session of congress. His aim is to provide immigration regulations to go into effect upon the expiration of the present passport restrictions on March 4, 1921.

The principal measure submitted to the committee will be Representative Johnson's bill, which provides for a two year suspension of immigration for the prevention of the immigration of undesirable citizens, and for the supervision of aliens in this country until they become citizens.

The federation of labor will appear in support of the suspension provision, but will encounter great opposition in the committee itself. Several members are of the opinion that the suspension section will be eliminated by the committee and even if retained will be rejected by the house. The federation, however, is determined to carry the fight to the last ditch.

The prevailing opinion is that congress will refuse to suspend immigration for any period, but will provide additional safeguards against the incoming of dangerous aliens and closer supervision of resident aliens, possibly under a system of permits requiring them to report regularly to the authorities.

The vote follows:

GETTING READY FOR RATIFICATION OF TREATY OF PEACE

PRESIDENT AND SECRETARY LANSING MEET SOON TO DISCUSS U. S. RELATIONS ABROAD

By Hugh Baillie
By United Press Leased Wire

Washington—The peace treaty is nearer ratification today than at any time since it was laid before the senate, in the belief of administration officials.

Steps which must follow its ratification already are being considered. One of the first will be a conference between President Wilson and Secretary Lansing for the purpose of arranging the details incident to American representatives taking their places in the league of nations council and assembly.

Another matter which is to be taken up by this conference and which has to do with adjusting America's international relations, is appointment of diplomatic representatives to the following countries:

China, Siam, Denmark, Switzerland, The Netherlands, Finland and Mexico. Later the selection of a diplomat to go to Germany will be considered.

When the United States representatives to the league council and assembly have been chosen America's policy with regard to punishment of Germany war guilty, acceptance of mandates and furnishing of troops for plebiscites will be known.

The policy on punishment of Germans is understood to have been formulated already. Under it, this country would not participate in the trial of the former kaiser and others whose surrender is demanded, even if such trials should take place, it is learned.

Other league members will be quietly advised, it is believed, that American troops overseas at this time would be unopposed here, and therefore the league will not suggest that they take part in maintaining order during plebiscites. On this point it is recalled Wilson has said:

"When the treaty is ratified, boys in khaki will not have to cross the seas again."

The league, it is expected, would not propose acceptance of a mandate by the United States just now, unless this country should volunteer to take one, which is considered extremely unlikely.

If the German treaty is ratified, quick action is looked for on the Austrian treaty and the temporary agreement between the United States and Great Britain for protection of France.

REPUBLICAN LEADERS IN CONGRESS AGREE ON PLAN TO PROVIDE TRAINING AND MONEY

Washington.—Republican leaders on Thursday considered a plan for the ultimate adoption of universal military training and bonuses for the soldiers who fought abroad.

The house steering committee, worried by opposition of the American legion, insisting on registration for compulsory training and bonuses, agreed that the finances of the country did not justify congress enacting this legislation at present.

In order to overcome the attitude of the democrats, who, in caucus, declared against universal military training, it was virtually decided by republican house leaders that they would pledge the party, so far as possible, to support both measures in the next congress, when the revenues might permit of the expenditures estimated at $1,000,000,000.

In anticipation of the visit next Monday of the executive officers of the American legion, republican leaders have about decided to create a special committee, which will study universal training and bonuses, and report exact costs to the next congress.

It was argued in the steering committee on Thursday that this plan would work satisfactorily, and in the end would meet with the approval of the country.

It was pointed out that compulsory training would probably be defeated for all time, if a measure were defeated in congress this session, as is certain, because of opposition on both sides.

Many congressmen are reported to be against such service purely for economical reasons, while it is apparent that much of the opposition is founded on the policy itself.

BADGER DEPENDENTS OF SOLDIERS ROBBED

THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS LOST TO WISCONSIN PEOPLE THROUGH OPERATIONS OF GANG

Milwaukee.—Wisconsin dependents of soldiers killed in France were robbed of thousands of dollars by a gang of alleged thieves; under arrest in Chicago, charged with stealing checks from soldiers' mail.

Government officials believe that a nation-wide gang existed for the purpose of working this fraud, and that dependents of Wisconsin and Illinois soldiers made up a large part of the list of victims.

The thieves are alleged to have taken soldiers' insurance payments, allotments for injuries, and death payments from the mails, and their confederates cashed the checks.

Byron B. Parks and Henry A. Western, negro postal clerks, confessed in Chicago on Thursday to playing a part in the swindle.

United States Commissioner Lewis F. Mason in Chicago, held to the grand jury under $200,000 bonds each Gladys Irene Stevens, Gwendolyn Marsh and Amos George, as well as Parks and Western. They are alleged to be the ringleaders of the swindlers. All are negroes.

Capt. Thomas I. Porter, chief of the federal secret service in this district, believes Wisconsin dependents may have been robbed of $300,000. "It is impossible to say at this

INDICTED SENATOR IS GIVEN BIG OVATION

By United Press Leased Wire
Grand Rapids, Mich.—The ovation tendered Senator Truman H. Newberry, chief defendant in the election fraud case now in federal court, by 1,000 Michigan republicans at the Lincoln republican club dinner here Thursday night, was a topic of wide discussion today.

Governor Frank O. Lowden was the chief speaker.

Senator Newberry declined to attend the dinner. He sent a letter of regret which when read, was the cause of a wild demonstration.

Newberry was cheered several minutes by the diners, among whom were practically all of the 175 defendants in the Newberry trial.

Governor Lowden confined his speech to the life of Lincoln.

Mrs. Margaret Hill McArthur, of Kansas, was another speaker.

RELIEF COMMISSION HELPS RE-UNITE ARMENIAN FAMILIES

(By Stephen C. Peabody)

One of the more recent ways in which the Near East Relief was supporting the people of Asia was by providing information and addresses to their relatives in America, who could send for them to come to America, or could send the money to them to help them during this crisis. In many cases a complete list of names of all Armenians and Greeks who had their friends or relatives in America was sent back to our headquarters where the names and addresses of these people were published in New York papers. In many cases relatives in America learned for the first time that their families, or friends of their families, had survived the deportations and were only too glad to send through the Near East Relief Committee, money to their relatives in the Near East. In one of the units, Harpoon, the amount of money sent back by relatives in America during the year in the Near East amounted to $10,000 in one month. Of course all such money sent providing the need of the Near East Relief Committee continued to help these people and allowing the Committee to use their money in other ways. Many Armenians are coming back to Asia Minor to find their families and bring them to America.

On the boat coming back to America with me there was an Armenian who had been in the American Army during the war at Camp Devens, Mass. He was bringing back with him to America his newly married wife whom he had helped at Samsun in our soup kitchen, and in our industrial plants. These are ways in which the Near East Relief Committee is facilitating the more prosperous Armenians in helping their less fortunate friends and relatives. Of course, this can effect only a small portion of the people who are actually suffering, and the greater part of our work and money must still be spent upon people who have no food, or clothing, or shelter, and who are unable to get employment.

The urgency of the situation over there is pointed out by Major General Harbord, who headed the American military mission which recently made an exhaustive investigation into the conditions in Armenia and other sections in the Near East. He states that thousands of persons in the Near East must perish this winter unless American Relief is continued. "I speak of this with conviction because my recent investigation of conditions in Turkey, in Asia and the Trans-Caucasus," Practical, American philanthropy, has kept alive a large portion of Armenians, Syrians and Greeks and other destitute people of the Near East, who would certainly have died of starvation and disease but for contributions from America; I was everywhere impressed with the pathetic trust with which these people depend upon America for their necessities of life. Several hundred thousands of these people are still refugees in the Caucasus, unable to return to their homes until conditions are more settled. There are at present more than 800,000 destitute in the Caucasus alone.

Two hundred and thirty thousand of these people are still refugees in the Caucasus, unable to return to their homes until conditions are more settled. There are at present more than 800,000 destitute in the Caucasus alone.

RELIEF COMMISSION HELPS RE-UNITE ARMENIAN FAMILIES

(By Stephen C. Peabody)

One of the more recent ways in which the Near East Relief was supporting the people of Asia was by providing information and addresses to their relatives in America, who could send for them to come to America, or could send the money to them to help them during this crisis. In many cases a complete list of names of all Armenians and Greeks who had their friends or relatives in America was sent back to our headquarters where the names and addresses of these people were published in New York papers. In many cases relatives in America learned for the first time that their families, or friends of their families, had survived the deportations and were only too glad to send through the Near East Relief Committee, money to their relatives in the Near East. In one of the units, Harpoon, the amount of money sent back by relatives in America during the year in the Near East amounted to $10,000 in one month. Of course all such money sent providing the need of the Near East Relief Committee continued to help these people and allowing the Committee to use their money in other ways. Many Armenians are coming back to Asia Minor to find their families and bring them to America.

On the boat coming back to America with me there was an Armenian who had been in the American Army during the war at Camp Devens, Mass. He was bringing back with him to America his newly married wife whom he had helped at Samsun in our soup kitchen, and in our industrial plants. These are ways in which the Near East Relief Committee is facilitating the more prosperous Armenians in helping their less fortunate friends and relatives. Of course, this can effect only a small portion of the people who are actually suffering, and the greater part of our work and money must still be spent upon people who have no food, or clothing, or shelter, and who are unable to get employment.

The urgency of the situation over there is pointed out by Major General Harbord, who headed the American military mission which recently made an exhaustive investigation into the conditions in Armenia and other sections in the Near East. He states that thousands of persons in the Near East must perish this winter unless American Relief is continued. "I speak of this with conviction because my recent investigation of conditions in Turkey, in Asia and the Trans-Caucasus," Practical, American philanthropy, has kept alive a large portion of Armenians, Syrians and Greeks and other destitute people of the Near East, who would certainly have died of starvation and disease but for contributions from America; I was everywhere impressed with the pathetic trust with which these people depend upon America for their necessities of life. Several hundred thousands of these people are still refugees in the Caucasus, unable to return to their homes until conditions are more settled. There are at present more than 800,000 destitute in the Caucasus alone.

FIRE INSPECTIONS SHOW CARELESSNESS OF APPLETON PEOPLE

CHIEF M'GILLAN OF FIRE DEPARTMENT WARNS PEOPLE TO EXERCISE MUCH MORE CAUTION

Inspections made by the local fire department revealed many startling facts. In the opinion of the fire fighters, it is only the hand of providence that prevents serious fires from raging in Appleton, as the result of carelessness.

Time and again inspectors found people placing ashes in wooden boxes or even paper boxes, or piling them against wooden partitions. They do this, of course, on the assumption that no live coals exist. But now and then a live coal buried in ashes may keep burning for a long time after ashes are dumped, and if it happens to come in contact with inflammable material, a fire results. The only rule to follow is to place ashes in metal containers, or remove them from the house entirely.

Rubbish and accumulations of paper offer another fire hazard. It is not uncommon for a fireman to walk into a basement where paper is piled close to the furnace, or where it is thrown into a corner carelessly, making ignition easily possible. Everything of this nature should either be burned at once, or placed out of reach of sparks or match sticks carelessly thrown aside.

"People grow careless altogether too easily nowadays," George P. McGillan, fire chief states. "We have issued frequent warnings about inviting fires in homes and business places through the carelessness or thoughtlessness of people, but it seems that increased caution is needed."

Here are some "don'ts" the chief wants every person in Appleton to read, and if any of the conditions exist, to remedy them at once as a help to eliminating fire losses.

Don't let children play with matches.

Don't throw away lighted matches, nor go into closets, bedrooms or cellars with them.

Don't use gasoline or kerosene for starting fires, for quickening fires, and be sure to keep such away from fires.

Don't put ashes in wooden boxes or barrels nor against any wooden surface.

Don't accumulate rubbish, and unless you remove it at once, keep any such in covered metal containers.

Don't store oils, paints, or grease in the house. Keep all greasy cloths or other oily material in tin containers, otherwise, combustion results.

Don't neglect to clean chimney flues at least once a year.

Don't have short gas brackets nor any close to woodwork or near curtains.

Don't set stoves close to woodwork, and put metal protection under gas plates used on wooden tables.

Don't look for a gas leak with matches or candles. Don't leave doors of stoves open unless you have a wire screen arranged to catch possible flying sparks. Don't fail to warn children about dangerous bonfires.

FIFTEEN COMPANIES ARE DRAWING PAY FOR DRILL

(Special to Post-Crescent.) Madison, Wis.—Ashland has the first machine gun company to go over the top in the state-wide drive for national guard recruits. Captain T. Thorson reported Wednesday that he had enlisted 60 men, seven more than enough to qualify for a regimental machine gun company.

Several other companies are within striking distance of the top for infantry or battalion machine gun companies which require 90 men with equipment. 81; Phillips, 88; Appleton, 84; Monroe, 85, leading. Other places which have shown the biggest gain in the past twenty-four hours are Ladysmith, which lacks only 7 for a troop of cavalry; Whitewater, infantry and Kenosha, artillery.

Wednesday night the heavy artillery supply company at Hartford was mustered into the federal service and Thursday night the Beaver Dam infantry company was mustered. This makes four companies of infantry, three troops of cavalry and one company of artillery that are now drawing pay for drill. In all there are fifteen companies that are recruited to over the required strength. As Phillips reported 88 Tuesday night that company is probably over the top by this time, although not included in the fifteen.

SIMS PEEVED BECAUSE HE CAN'T CRITICIZE

By United Press Leased Wire. Jersey City.—Rear Admiral William S. Sims, told an audience here last night that Americanism was a defect because Americans could not withstand adverse criticism. "This is the only country in the world which refuses to allow military men to criticize," Sims declared.

PAPER SHORTAGE WILL LAST 2 YEARS LONGER

ONLY REMEDY FOR SITUATION IS CONSTRUCTION OF MORE PAPER MILLS, CANADIAN SAYS

(Special to Post-Crescent.) Chicago.—The present world shortage of print paper will continue at least two years and even then the only remedy will be the establishment of more pulp and paper mills, is the opinion of W. P. Hinton of Winnipeg, vice-president and general manager of the Grand Trunk Pacific railway.

"The paper shortage left parts of western Canada without newspapers recently," said Mr. Hinton on a visit to Chicago. "Winnipeg papers did not print for a week. The crisis resulted in the resignation of R. A. Pringle, Canadian Paper controller and the appointment of R. W. Broadner. Under Pringle's ruling, the Canadian price was fixed at $70 a ton, while the price procurable in the United States and for export was very much higher. The trouble centered around the Fort Frances mills, an American owned concern on Rainy River, Ontario. The mill owners took the bit in their teeth, defied the paper controller and shipped their product to the United States where the market is not under government control. Broadner made a satisfactory arrangement with the company and western Canada is now receiving enough paper to take care of its needs. I understand the mills ship 18 per cent of their output to Canadian papers and 82 per cent to the United States. There is at present enough print paper in Canada for Canadian requirements with a generous amount left over for the United States. It is understood that the distribution in the future will be on equitable and satisfactory basis as far as practicable."

"There is no lack of pulpwood timber either in Canada or in the United States at present. Great inroads, however, are being made in the forests. As the trees are cut, the source of supply recedes into the North, the haulage to the mill becomes greater and the expense of manufacture consequently is increased. The cause of the shortage is the inability of present mill capacity to meet market demands. The demand from Europe is tremendous and prices are unprecedented. Print paper laid down on the Atlantic seaboard for shipment abroad now sells at $160 a ton. Manufacturers can hardly be blamed for taking advantage of the best market."

In France the fight against "La Vie Chere" (If C. L.) has failed because there is a genuine shortage.

A specially designed telegraph cable is to be laid from Rio de Janeiro to Cuba.
